A Master of Passion and Poignancy

Gaius Valerius Catullus, who lived from 84 to 54 BC, was a master of capturing the complexities of human emotion. His poems are characterized by their raw intensity, vivid imagery, and a profound understanding of the human psyche.

Love was a central theme in Catullus's poetry. He celebrated its joys and ecstasies in verses that are both passionate and tender. The collection includes some of his most famous love poems, such as "Lesbia, let's live and love" and "I hate and I love."

However, Catullus was also no stranger to loss and heartbreak. The death of his beloved brother plunged him into deep grief, which he expressed in some of his most poignant poems. The collection includes "On the Death of

His Brother" and "To His Mournful Friend Veranius," which explore the depths of human suffering.

Universal Themes, Timeless Appeal

Despite being written over two millennia ago, Catullus's poetry continues to resonate with readers today. His themes of love, loss, jealousy, and the search for meaning are timeless and universal. Through his vivid language and evocative imagery, he invites us to explore the complexities of our own emotions and experiences.

The Carcanet Classics edition features the Latin text of Catullus's poems alongside English translations by renowned translator Guy Lee. This dual-language approach allows readers to appreciate the beauty of the original while also understanding the nuances and subtleties of the English translations.
