Neoliberalism is a political and economic ideology that emphasizes privatization, deregulation, and free trade. It has led to a widening gap between the rich and the poor, the destruction of the environment, and the erosion of democracy.

Fascism is a political ideology that glorifies the nation and the leader, and that seeks to suppress dissent. It is often associated with racism, xenophobia, and violence.

Wars of aggression are wars that are fought without a just cause. They are often used to conquer territory or to impose a particular ideology on others.

These three forces are interconnected and mutually reinforcing.

Neoliberalism creates the conditions for fascism to thrive, and fascism in turn creates the conditions for wars of aggression.

We must resist these forces at every turn. We must fight for economic justice, for environmental protection, and for democracy. We must stand up to racism, xenophobia, and violence. We must refuse to participate in wars of aggression.

The book "Resist Neoliberalism, Fascism, and Wars of Aggression" provides a comprehensive analysis of these three forces and offers a roadmap for resistance.
