Sophie, a brilliant student at the University of Munich, and Fritz, a former seminary student turned soldier, met in 1942. Despite the dangers, they fell deeply in love, sharing a passion for freedom and a burning desire to make a difference.

Together, they joined the White Rose, a non-violent resistance group that distributed anti-Nazi leaflets in Munich. Their actions were bold and dangerous, but they believed in the power of words to inspire change.

As the war raged on, the stakes grew higher. The Gestapo stepped up its search for members of the White Rose, and Sophie and Fritz knew that their lives were on the line.

In February 1943, Sophie and Fritz were arrested along with other members of the White Rose. They were tortured and interrogated, but they refused to betray their ideals. On February 22, 1943, they were executed by guillotine.

Sophie Scholl and Fritz Hartnagel were just two of the many brave men and women who fought against the Nazis. Their love story is a testament to the strength of the human spirit and the enduring power of love in the face of adversity.
