A Window into the Depths of Human Experience

The three plays included in this anthology offer a diverse exploration of the human condition, delving into themes of love, loss, regret, and the indomitable spirit of resilience.

"The Bench" by Carol Lashof depicts the poignant encounter between two strangers on a park bench, as they share their stories of love, heartbreak, and the bittersweet passage of time. With its intimate setting and evocative dialogue, this play celebrates the enduring power of human connection and the wisdom that comes with age.

"The Audition" by Don Nigro offers a darkly humorous look at the challenges and aspirations of aging actors. As a group of veteran performers audition for a prestigious theater company, they confront their own mortality, the changing landscape of the industry, and the bittersweet reality of their dimming star power.

"The Visit" by Friedrich Dürrenmatt presents a haunting and thought-provoking exploration of justice, revenge, and the corrosive effects of time. When an elderly woman returns to her hometown seeking vengeance for a long-forgotten wrong, the community is forced to confront its own complicity in her suffering.

A Platform for Mature Actors to Shine

Three One-Act Plays for Mature Actors is not only a collection of exceptional plays but also a testament to the invaluable contributions of senior actors to the world of theater.
